About Elior

Elior UK

 10,000 People

 1,200+ Sites

Elior UK is an award-winning contract caterer. We primarily provide food services to several sectors including business and industry, education, defense, leisure and care across our brands of Elior UK – Taylor Shaw, Caterplus, Lexington and Edwards & Blake. We partner with a broad range of food and non-food suppliers who source from various locations nationally and across the globe. We have a large and diverse workforce with 10,000 colleagues at over 1,200 sites.

Elior Group

 11 Countries

 133,000 Colleagues

We are a subsidiary of Elior Group, where 133,000 employees across 11 countries feed millions of people daily. The Group has a management team in each country and overall operations are led by Daniel Derichebourg, the Group Chief Executive Officer. Catherine Roe, the Chief Executive of Elior UK and her board of directors, oversee operations within the United Kingdom.

Elior's modern slavery activities have been identified as part of our modern slavery risk assessment these include; the suppliers that we work with who source globally and the people we employ, as an employer of 10,000 people where employment processes are managed locally.

Elior Group has been a signatory of the United Nations Global Compact since 2004. As a signatory, Elior Group and all its subsidiaries pledge to uphold the ten principles. Our CSR strategy is based on providing a key response to the UN Sustainable Development Goals. Principle 4 of the compact is the "elimination of all forms of forced and compulsory labour" and we're dedicated to ensuring we comply with this principle.

Our Policies

To enable us to regulate and ensure compliance with this principle we've introduced various policies that outline how our colleagues are to act regarding ethical trading. The following policies can be found on our website: <https://www.elior.co.uk/news/publications>

- Our Corporate Responsibility policy outlines our ultimate goal, to promote sustainable growth with responsible, innovative and ethical business practice.
- Our Purchasing policy and responsible sourcing charter state that our colleagues are committed to purchasing in an ethical and transparent manner and operate a rigorous approach to selecting suppliers.
- Reinforcing this is our Standards of Business Conduct policy, it outlines that colleagues in contact with suppliers and contractors (incl. external consultants) must always abide by our Supplier Code of Conduct.

Raising Awareness of Modern Slavery

Elior's colleague modern slavery training was last launched in 2021. Since then, more than 3,000 managers have been trained to understand:

- What modern slavery is
- What Elior is doing to raise awareness
- The different types of modern slavery
- How modern slavery can affect Elior
- Who may be impacted by modern slavery
- How to spot signs of modern slavery
- What to do if modern slavery is suspected

At the end of the last financial year, the modern slavery working group, comprising HR, Procurement and CSR executives, reviewed the existing programme. As a result, a new training model was identified as a key area of focus. A new programme has now been selected and is being implemented during the 2026 financial year. This will include a mandatory completion requirement for colleagues, as well as annual refresher training. Progress on this training will be included in next year's modern slavery statement and reported through the annual KPI process.

Rights to Work in our Business

We're committed to ensuring that right to work checks are carried out consistently and diligently in line with current UK legislation.

- ☐ Copies of documents from List A or B, the official documentation that must be checked as an employer in order to prevent illegal working, are retained on colleague files.
- ☐ Regular audits are carried out to ensure all sites are compliant with our internal procedures.
- ☐ Right to work checks are supplemented by additional security checks within areas of the organisation that are subject to satisfactory DBS disclosure prior to employment.
- ☐ Full guidance relating to the importance of all pre-employment checks is provided to line managers along with various training guides and online tools designed to ensure that illegal working is prevented.
- ☐ In addition, the Company standard is to reference check the last five years of employment of all new colleagues (2 references).

We have also rolled out a 'checking app' called Trust ID to assist in combatting illegal working. This cloud-based document checking solution automatically identifies whether a Right to Work check is authentic by analysing key information, such as the Machine-Readable Zone (MRZ) code, i.e. the code lines you see at the base of passports, visas and ID cards.

Following the completion of satisfactory background checks, all our colleagues are given contracts at the start of employment. These are given to the colleague for review and are then signed by both the colleague and Elior UK, clearly stating the terms and conditions of engagement, and the voluntary nature of employment. Colleagues have the freedom to leave our employment at any time (subject to contractual notice) and any overtime more than standard contracted hours is also voluntary.

Rights to Work in our Business

Over the past 20 years, working arrangements have been changing rapidly and new working patterns have emerged – it's now less common for our colleagues to work full time for their whole career. In our industry part-time, agency and casual workers are more typical than the traditional full-time employee.

Casual workers agreements enable us to maintain a pool of individuals who may or may not be available at short notice to help at busy times of the year or when there is a major event / function (such as a banquet, conference, race meeting, etc.) for which they require the services of extra colleagues.

Although in these instances we control when, how, and where the work is to be done, there is no mutuality of obligation – Elixir UK is not obliged to provide any specific individual worker with the work and everyone is free, without penalty, to accept or reject any offer made to him or her. Such an individual may be, for example: someone who may work on match days occasionally through the football season, who may work at specific functions, conferences or banquets throughout the year.

To assist with the elimination of modern slavery and to ensure it does not occur within our business; we issue 'Manager's Guidance Notes'. The document outlines specifically how the hospitality sector is affected by modern slavery, what areas are more at risk, and recent figures. It re-affirms the processes that managers need to take when hiring new starters and lists legal documents required.

It also includes a section on common signs on how to spot potential victims, including: legal documents, behaviour, pay, medical care, transport, appearance, fear of authorities and debt slavery; and explains what the manager should do and who they need to contact if they believe someone is affected by modern slavery.

Furthermore, we created a HR Toolkit session on our internal extranet providing additional information and guidance. This is an interactive session that managers can work through with their staff and discuss modern slavery as a topic and how they can work together to help in its elimination. Additionally, presentations and operational briefings at team meetings have occurred targeting all senior management.

KPI's associated with modern slavery reporting and progress management include:

Number of colleagues trained

Number of concerns raised through the whistleblowing procedure

% of suppliers signing the Group Ethical Sourcing Charter

Number of suppliers completing awareness training & questionnaire on modern slavery

Supply Chain Transparency

The Elior UK Purchasing Department's principal commitment is to ensure our suppliers deliver products and services to our business via a safe and auditable supply chain, ensuring compliance to legislative, food, safety and welfare regulations. We work alongside the Elior UK Safety and Wellbeing Team to maintain the highest standards for our clients and customers.

As a signatory of the UN Global Compact, Elior is committed to upholding the Ten Principles surrounding Human Rights, Labour, Environment and Anti-corruption. This means we always operate in ways that meet fundamental responsibilities in these areas. We also encourage responsible business practices throughout our supply chain by only engaging with suppliers who approach and manage their business in an ethical, social and responsible manner in line with national legislation. To ensure that our objectives are met we stipulate a Supplier Code of Conduct, which suppliers must sign up to.

We will not knowingly engage with any suppliers that operate poor labour practices that breach our code of conduct and we reserve the right to audit suppliers where we consider necessary.

It is our intention to review this statement on an annual basis in line with the requirements of the Modern Slavery Act and update on progress made to ensure full compliance with the act.
